

Transparency International (New Zealand)

Guiding Principles

Prologue

In pursuit of good governance, and in terms of New Zealand's commitment to freedom and human rights

Transparency International (New Zealand) will

- * oppose bribery and corruption vigorously and openly but not investigate individual cases;
- * work co-operatively with individuals, corporations , governments and international organisations in the fight against corruption;
- * operate on the basis of sound, objective research and analysis in a democratic, non partisan and non sectarian way;
- * seek funding that supports and does not compromise our ability to address issues objectively and freely;
- * cooperate in building, working with and supporting the work of the Transparency International Secretariat in Berlin and support other national chapters particularly in the Pacific region;
- * maintain a balanced and diverse governing body.
